

LITERARY NOTES.

The newest volume in J. B. Lippincott & Co.'s series of Foreign Classics for English Readers is "Montaigne," being the seventh.

Mr. H. H. Clarke, for thirty years a professor for the University Press at Cambridge, has formed a similar connection with the Boston house of Rand, Avery & Co.

Another novel by Emile Zola is to be brought out in this country. T. B. Peterson & Brothers announce his "La Fante de l'Abbe Mouret," under the title "The Abbe's Temptation," the translation having been made by John Stirling. It will be ready in a few days.

S. C. Hall, in his memoir of Thomas Moore, just published in London, explains through a preface that the main purpose of the book is to add to a fund which the author intends to raise for placing a memorial window in the church where Moore, his wife and their three children lie buried.

Louisa M. Alcott will have in the June St. Nicholas a story called "Two Little Travellers," and Susan Coolidge, besides the sixth chapter of her "Eyesight," an illustrated poem entitled "Mignonette." Edward A. Kentle has written an article on "How a Court Serves the Earth" and Sarah Winter Kellogg a sketch called "A Second Trial."

The archives of the Comédie Française are said to be rich in material for the history of the French stage. Its records begin with the register kept by La Grange for the company of Molière. In the time of the Revolution the library was valued at 75 francs, but to-day its value is placed beyond price. Among the curiosities in the museum are the chair in which Molére sat during his last performance, and the bell of the church of the Faubourg Saint-Vincent, which gave the signal for the massacre of St. Bartholomew. They both lie in the property-room along with "the pinebush crowns, the rickety thrones, and the other glories of theatrical life."

M. de Louménie's work on the Mirabeau family, recently published in Paris, was designed by him as a study of the family circumstances and hereditary influences which had to do with the formation of the genius of the great orator of the Revolution. He further intended it only as a foundation for a biography of Mirabeau, which was nearly finished at the time of his death, and which is now announced for speedy publication. In the work on the family of Mirabeau, he has, it is believed, shown conclusively that there is no basis for the claim that the Mirabeaus were of Italian origin. They really were a Provincial family, and did not become noble before the sixteenth century.

An author who takes the name of "Noblesse Obligé" has published in England a volume called "Our Old Nobility," in which he gives the origin of each noble family and the extent of its possessions, with comments on the means by which they were acquired. In noticing the book, The British Quarterly Review remarks that "the large proportion of noble families founded by royal concubines, and the unscrupulous rapacity both in voluptuous givers and needy recipients, by which they were enriched, are a shameful chapter in English history." With very few exceptions, "the records are a chronicus scandala such as happily is not possible now, else the days of the monarchs would be numbered."

The Quarterly adds that "if a Charles II, or a James IV, were now to ascend the throne, he would be the last of his line."

The autobiography of Prince Metternich, now being edited by his son, will, it is said, contain much interesting matter. It is to be completed in four parts, making eight volumes. The first part will appear this year and will contain an autobiography of the Prince, entitled "Materials for the History of my Public Life." The second part will have the title "The Gallery of Illustrious Contemporaries," and among others there will be sketches of Napoleon I and Alexander I of Russia. In Part III will be given a series of letters and dispatches from the Prince in explanation of his autobiography, and Part VI will comprise a collection of private letters from Prince Metternich to Count Apolloni while Ambassador at Paris during the reign of Louis Philippe. Part VIII will contain a second series of contemporary portraits, including Louis Philippe and Charles Albert. Part X will consist of dispatches, and Part XI a collection of Testaments. The Prince will also write a series of "Memories and Reflections" which the fourteenth and last part will contain the Prince's literary correspondence with Goethe, Humboldt, Liebig, Rossiini and Jean Paul Richter. Arrangements have been made to publish the book in London as well as in Vienna.

New Publications.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, 1825 5th-ave., New-York. HAVE NOW READY.

THE PURITAN AND THE QUAKER: A Story of Colonial Times in New-England. By R. G. B. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The picture given in this volume is faithful, vivid and artistic, and the story, while interesting in itself, possesses a special interest to those whose New-England ancestors took part in the events referred to.

BRIEFS BY A BARRISTER: OR, Letters from Veritas. By Edward J. Jones. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

A READING-BOOK OF ENGLISH CLASSICS. Edited for use in schools by the Rev. C. W. Lodgington, D.D., Rector of St. Mary's School, Knoxville, Tenn. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The aim of this volume is to provide for young readers an attractive introduction to sound literature. Teachers who wish to cultivate in their pupils a taste for reading of a high order, and to make them acquainted with the great authors and their works, will find this Reading-Book adapted to their use.

"I find these selections most admirable."—Bishop Doane, of Albany.

"An excellent work."—[The late Dr. DeKoven, of Racine.]

POESY FOR BOYS AND SCHULE. A collection of standard German poetry, selected and arranged for use in schools and the home circle, by L. R. Klemme, author of "Sprach und Leben" in acht Kreisen," &c., &c. 16mo, cloth extra, $1.25.

This forms a companion volume to Miss Brackett's popular collection of "Poetry for Home and School."

THE ASSAILANTS OF CHRISTIANITY. By O. B. Frothingham. 8vo, sewed, 20 cents.

EMERGENCIES, AND HOW TO MEET THEM. Compiled by H. G. Wilder, M. D., Professor of Physiology and Comparative Anatomy in Cornell University. 16mo, sewed, 15 cents.

POTTS' DISEASE: Its Pathology and Mechanical Treatment. By Newton M. Shaffer, M. D. Large 8vo, handsomely printed, illustrated, sewed, $1.

ARCHIVES OF OPHTHALMOLOGY. A monthly journal in English and German, for the U.S. and Western Europe. Dr. K. H. Knobell, in New-York, and Dr. J. Hirschberg in Berlin. The "Archives of Ophthalmology" will be published four times a year, and each yearly volume will contain 50 octavo pages handsomely printed and extensively illustrated with woodcuts and lithographs. The subscription per year will be $4. No. 1 for April, 1879, now ready. Price $1.25.

Instruction.

FOR BOYS AND YOUNG MEN—COUNTRY. The Rev. S. N. HOWELL, A.M., Principal.

PEEKILL (N.Y.) MILITARY ACADEMY. Send for illustrated circular for 1878-79.

ST. PAUL'S SUMMER SCHOOL OF SCIENCE. Haverstraw-on-Hudson.—Term opens JUNE 16, closed SEPTEMBER 1, 1879. Practical teaching in the field. Excursions will be given to various notable places, to interest students in the study of science. The school is open to boys, animals, plants, fossils and minerals made and cabinets formed, modern languages taught conversationally, instruction in English, music, drawing and painting, etc. Boys under 14 years of age, and devotes himself exclusively to their studies, will be under careful masters; conditioned pupils and others coached in Latin, Greek and mathematics. Catalogues containing information may be had on application. Address J. H. Thompson, 128 West 4th-st., New-York.

HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS. Mrs. E. H. Clarke, for thirty years a professor for the University Press at Cambridge, has formed a similar connection with the Boston house of Rand, Avery & Co.

ANOTHER novel by Emile Zola is to be brought out in this country. T. B. Peterson & Brothers announce his "La Fante de l'Abbe Mouret," under the title "The Abbe's Temptation," the translation having been made by John Stirling. It will be ready in a few days.

S. C. Hall, in his memoir of Thomas Moore, just published in London, explains through a preface that the main purpose of the book is to add to a fund which the author intends to raise for placing a memorial window in the church where Moore, his wife and their three children lie buried.

Louisa M. Alcott will have in the June St. Nicholas a story called "Two Little Travellers," and Susan Coolidge, besides the sixth chapter of her "Eyesight," an illustrated poem entitled "Mignonette." Edward A. Kentle has written an article on "How a Court Serves the Earth" and Sarah Winter Kellogg a sketch called "A Second Trial."

The archives of the Comédie Française are said to be rich in material for the history of the French stage. Its records begin with the register kept by La Grange for the company of Molière. In the time of the Revolution the library was valued at 75 francs, but to-day its value is placed beyond price. Among the curiosities in the museum are the chair in which Molére sat during his last performance, and the bell of the church of the Faubourg Saint-Vincent, which gave the signal for the massacre of St. Bartholomew. They both lie in the property-room along with "the pinebush crowns, the rickety thrones, and the other glories of theatrical life."

M. de Louménie's work on the Mirabeau family, recently published in Paris, was designed by him as a study of the family circumstances and hereditary influences which had to do with the formation of the genius of the great orator of the Revolution. He further intended it only as a foundation for a biography of Mirabeau, which was nearly finished at the time of his death, and which is now announced for speedy publication. In the work on the family of Mirabeau, he has, it is believed, shown conclusively that there is no basis for the claim that the Mirabeaus were of Italian origin. They really were a Provincial family, and did not become noble before the sixteenth century.

An author who takes the name of "Noblesse Obligé" has published in England a volume called "Our Old Nobility," in which he gives the origin of each noble family and the extent of its possessions, with comments on the means by which they were acquired. In noticing the book, The British Quarterly Review remarks that "the large proportion of noble families founded by royal concubines, and the unscrupulous rapacity both in voluptuous givers and needy recipients, by which they were enriched, are a shameful chapter in English history." With very few exceptions, "the records are a chronicus scandala such as happily is not possible now, else the days of the monarchs would be numbered."

The Quarterly adds that "if a Charles II, or a James IV, were now to ascend the throne, he would be the last of his line."

The autobiography of Prince Metternich, now being edited by his son, will, it is said, contain much interesting matter. It is to be completed in four parts, making eight volumes. The first part will appear this year and will contain an autobiography of the Prince, entitled "Materials for the History of my Public Life." The second part will have the title "The Gallery of Illustrious Contemporaries," and among others there will be sketches of Napoleon I and Alexander I of Russia. In Part III will be given a series of letters and dispatches from the Prince in explanation of his autobiography, and Part VI will comprise a collection of private letters from Prince Metternich to Count Apolloni while Ambassador at Paris during the reign of Louis Philippe. Part VIII will contain a second series of contemporary portraits, including Louis Philippe and Charles Albert. Part X will consist of dispatches, and Part XI a collection of Testaments. The Prince will also write a series of "Memories and Reflections" which the fourteenth and last part will contain the Prince's literary correspondence with Goethe, Humboldt, Liebig, Rossiini and Jean Paul Richter. Arrangements have been made to publish the book in London as well as in Vienna.

New Publications.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, 1825 5th-ave., New-York. HAVE NOW READY.

THE PURITAN AND THE QUAKER: A Story of Colonial Times in New-England. By R. G. B. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The picture given in this volume is faithful, vivid and artistic, and the story, while interesting in itself, possesses a special interest to those whose New-England ancestors took part in the events referred to.

BRIEFS BY A BARRISTER: OR, Letters from Veritas. By Edward J. Jones. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

A READING-BOOK OF ENGLISH CLASSICS. Edited for use in schools by the Rev. C. W. Lodgington, D.D., Rector of St. Mary's School, Knoxville, Tenn. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The aim of this volume is to provide for young readers an attractive introduction to sound literature. Teachers who wish to cultivate in their pupils a taste for reading of a high order, and to make them acquainted with the great authors and their works, will find this Reading-Book adapted to their use.

"I find these selections most admirable."—Bishop Doane, of Albany.

"An excellent work."—[The late Dr. DeKoven, of Racine.]

POESY FOR BOYS AND SCHULE. A collection of standard German poetry, selected and arranged for use in schools and the home circle, by L. R. Klemme, author of "Sprach und Leben" in acht Kreisen," &c., &c. 16mo, cloth extra, $1.25.

This forms a companion volume to Miss Brackett's popular collection of "Poetry for Home and School."

THE ASSAILANTS OF CHRISTIANITY. By O. B. Frothingham. 8vo, sewed, 20 cents.

EMERGENCIES, AND HOW TO MEET THEM. Compiled by H. G. Wilder, M. D., Professor of Physiology and Comparative Anatomy in Cornell University. 16mo, sewed, 15 cents.

POTTS' DISEASE: Its Pathology and Mechanical Treatment. By Newton M. Shaffer, M. D. Large 8vo, handsomely printed, illustrated, sewed, $1.

ARCHIVES OF OPHTHALMOLOGY. A monthly journal in English and German, for the U.S. and Western Europe. Dr. K. H. Knobell, in New-York, and Dr. J. Hirschberg in Berlin. The "Archives of Ophthalmology" will be published four times a year, and each yearly volume will contain 50 octavo pages handsomely printed and extensively illustrated with woodcuts and lithographs. The subscription per year will be $4. No. 1 for April, 1879, now ready. Price $1.25.

Instruction.

FOR BOYS AND YOUNG MEN—COUNTRY. The Rev. S. N. HOWELL, A.M., Principal.

PEEKILL (N.Y.) MILITARY ACADEMY. Send for illustrated circular for 1878-79.

ST. PAUL'S SUMMER SCHOOL OF SCIENCE. Haverstraw-on-Hudson.—Term opens JUNE 16, closed SEPTEMBER 1, 1879. Practical teaching in the field. Excursions will be given to various notable places, to interest students in the study of science. The school is open to boys, animals, plants, fossils and minerals made and cabinets formed, modern languages taught conversationally, instruction in English, music, drawing and painting, etc. Boys under 14 years of age, and devote themselves exclusively to their studies, will be under careful masters; conditioned pupils and others coached in Latin, Greek and mathematics. Catalogues containing information may be had on application. Address J. H. Thompson, 128 West 4th-st., New-York.

ANOTHER novel by Emile Zola is to be brought out in this country. T. B. Peterson & Brothers announce his "La Fante de l'Abbe Mouret," under the title "The Abbe's Temptation," the translation having been made by John Stirling. It will be ready in a few days.

S. C. Hall, in his memoir of Thomas Moore, just published in London, explains through a preface that the main purpose of the book is to add to a fund which the author intends to raise for placing a memorial window in the church where Moore, his wife and their three children lie buried.

Louisa M. Alcott will have in the June St. Nicholas a story called "Two Little Travellers," and Susan Coolidge, besides the sixth chapter of her "Eyesight," an illustrated poem entitled "Mignonette." Edward A. Kentle has written an article on "How a Court Serves the Earth" and Sarah Winter Kellogg a sketch called "A Second Trial."

The archives of the Comédie Française are said to be rich in material for the history of the French stage. Its records begin with the register kept by La Grange for the company of Molière. In the time of the Revolution the library was valued at 75 francs, but to-day its value is placed beyond price. Among the curiosities in the museum are the chair in which Molére sat during his last performance, and the bell of the church of the Faubourg Saint-Vincent, which gave the signal for the massacre of St. Bartholomew. They both lie in the property-room along with "the pinebush crowns, the rickety thrones, and the other glories of theatrical life."

M. de Louménie's work on the Mirabeau family, recently published in Paris, was designed by him as a study of the family circumstances and hereditary influences which had to do with the formation of the genius of the great orator of the Revolution. He further intended it only as a foundation for a biography of Mirabeau, which was nearly finished at the time of his death, and which is now announced for speedy publication. In the work on the family of Mirabeau, he has, it is believed, shown conclusively that there is no basis for the claim that the Mirabeaus were of Italian origin. They really were a Provincial family, and did not become noble before the sixteenth century.

An author who takes the name of "Noblesse Obligé" has published in England a volume called "Our Old Nobility," in which he gives the origin of each noble family and the extent of its possessions, with comments on the means by which they were acquired. Address J. H. Thompson, 128 West 4th-st., New-York.

THE PURITAN AND THE QUAKER: A Story of Colonial Times in New-England. By R. G. B. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The picture given in this volume is faithful, vivid and artistic, and the story, while interesting in itself, possesses a special interest to those whose New-England ancestors took part in the events referred to.

BRIEFS BY A BARRISTER: OR, Letters from Veritas. By Edward J. Jones. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

A READING-BOOK OF ENGLISH CLASSICS. Edited for use in schools by the Rev. C. W. Lodgington, D.D., Rector of St. Mary's School, Knoxville, Tenn. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50.

The aim of this volume is to provide for young readers an attractive introduction to sound literature. Teachers who wish to cultivate in their pupils a taste for reading of a high order, and to make them acquainted with the great authors and their works, will find this Reading-Book adapted to their use.

"I find these selections most admirable."—Bishop Doane, of Albany.

"An excellent work."—[The late Dr. DeKoven, of Racine.]

POESY FOR BOYS AND SCHULE. A collection of standard German poetry, selected and arranged for use in schools and the home circle, by L. R. Klemme, author of "Sprach und Leben" in acht Kreisen," &c., &c. 16mo, cloth extra, $1.25.

This forms a companion volume to Miss Brackett's popular collection of "Poetry for Home and School."

THE ASSAILANTS OF CHRISTIANITY. By O. B. Frothingham. 8vo, sewed, 20 cents.

EMERGENCIES, AND HOW TO MEET THEM. Compiled by H. G. Wilder, M. D., Professor of Physiology and Comparative Anatomy in Cornell University. 16mo, sewed, 15 cents.

POTTS' DISEASE: Its Pathology and Mechanical Treatment. By Newton M. Shaffer, M. D. Large 8vo, handsomely printed, illustrated, sewed, $1.

ARCHIVES OF OPHTHALMOLOGY. A monthly journal in English and German, for the U.S. and Western Europe. Dr. K. H. Knobell, in New-York, and Dr. J. Hirschberg in Berlin. The "Archives of Ophthalmology" will be published four times a year, and each yearly volume will contain 50 octavo pages handsomely printed and extensively illustrated with woodcuts and lithographs. The subscription per year will be $4. No. 1 for April, 1879, now ready. Price $1.25.

Instruction.

FOR BOYS AND YOUNG MEN—COUNTRY. The Rev. S. N. HOWELL, A.M., Principal.

PEEKILL (N.Y.) MILITARY ACADEMY. Send for illustrated circular for 1878-79.

ST. PAUL'S SUMMER SCHOOL OF SCIENCE. Haverstraw-on-Hudson.—Term opens JUNE 16, closed SEPTEMBER 1, 1879. Practical teaching in the field. Excursions will be given to various notable places, to interest students in the study of science. The school is